Because of you

THE JOURNEY CONTINUES

It brings me joy renewing the feeling of community by helping improve the journey of others. It's what makes Winneshiek County such a special place to live, work and play. One way we connect as a community is in support of friends and neighbors, working together to improve the lives of others. As a Foundation, we continue our mission of working to enhance the impact of Winneshiek Medical Center and the lives of our friends and family.

There are many development projects on the horizon for WMC that will ensure it remains a hub for health care in our area. We have concluded the 2021 Annual Fund campaign to support the growth and outreach of our Rehabilitation and Sports Medicine department, expanding therapy space and updating rehab equipment. Many of us have loved ones who have benefitted from rehab and therapy, whether it is after a heart attack or following a sports injury. WMC strives to keep our community well and this is an important part of the journey. We are thankful for all the donors who have made gifts to the Annual Fund, and ask you to join us in reaching our goal for the 2022 Annual Fund. Your support truly changes lives.

Upper Iowa University student receives expert concussion care with WMC team

The drive home from Christmas break changed the course of Calista Brockman's junior year at Upper Iowa University. Just 10 short minutes away from Fayette, Calista lost control of her vehicle on slippery roads and slid in the ditch. Although her car was damaged, Calista did not have any noticeable injuries and was able to end her night without an emergency room visit.

However, within a few days, Calista noticed dizziness and balance issues. A softball player for UIU, she spoke to her athletic trainer about it who referred her to Emily Connor, M.D., Mayo Clinic Health System orthopedic surgeon at Winneshiek Medical Center. Calista says, "Dr. Connor saw me in the UIU training room the next day, which was really convenient since my car was no longer drivable. She is one of our team physicians and her specialty is orthopedic surgery. Dr. Connor thought I had a concussion but wanted someone familiar with concussion care to confirm and follow my recovery."

A concussion is a traumatic brain injury that affects brain function and is usually caused by a blow to the head or violent shaking of the head and/or upper body. Symptoms of concussion may include, but are not limited to:

- Headache
- Temporary loss of consciousness
- Confusion
- Dizziness
- Nausea
- Fatigue
- Change in mood or behavior
- Sensitivity to light and sound

Scott Bohner, D.O., Mayo Clinic Health System family medicine physician at Winneshiek Medical Center has been treating patients with concussion symptoms for the past 13 years. In July of 2017, Dr. Bohner furthered his education and obtained his

Credentialed ImPACT Consultant (CIC) certification to provide ongoing concussion care to athletes in the region. Dr. Bohner says, "Dr. Connor referred Calista to me and I met with her at Winneshiek Medical Center's Upper Iowa Clinic on their campus. Through our visit, it was clear she had a concussion. Her best course of treatment was to rest to allow her brain to heal, and to work with physical therapy to address the dizziness and balance issues she was experiencing."

Calista was out of softball for about one month as she recovered. Her physical therapy sessions and follow up medical visits were held at UIU and in Decorah. She says, "Winneshiek Medical Center manages all our health services on campus, including athletics, so it was coordinated to meet my schedule. I was even given the cell phone numbers of my health care providers in case I needed anything during my recovery."

Upon her completion of physical therapy, Calista was cleared to go back to practice, and within a few weeks, the team was off to Florida for a tournament. Calista, who covers some third base, but mostly hits, was able to play with her team. Calista says, "I'm thankful for the care I received at college. The doctors, therapist and trainer became my team while I recovered, and it is great to be back on the softball field!"

Transforming Tomorrow

Winneshiek Medical Center announces expansion plans

Winneshiek Medical Center is growing in many ways to meet the needs of the broader region. One of the ways that will be most visible is in our facilities. In December of last year, Winneshiek Medical Center embarked on the design process of a major facility expansion and remodel. Through this work, we will be able to offer patients the following:

- A new, fully renovated birthing suite
- An expanded surgery area to include larger rooms to accommodate new technology and an additional operating room to meet the growing volume of our surgical practice

- A new addition to house specialty clinics
- A renovation of our primary care facilities to allow for additional access growth, a better patient experience, and promotion of team based care.

There will be additional check in points throughout this planning process, but assuming continued approvals by the Board of Trustees, the goal is to complete design this fall, bid out the project and begin construction in early 2023. We will keep the community updated through future features in this publication, social media and local newspapers. "This project is reflective of the excellent work done every day by our staff and providers," shares Steve Slessor, chief administrative officer at Winneshiek Medical Center. "We have grown tremendously over the last few years due to their dedication."

New bunion treatment available at WMC

A bunion is a common condition of the foot where there is misalignment that forms at the base of the big toe. The skin over a bunion can become red and sore, and there can be pain with activity, including even simple activity like wearing a shoe.

According to Mayo Clinic, it is estimated that up to 30% of the population will develop bunions. Some bunions will never cause any problems, while others may result in painful or irritating symptoms. Cosmetically, bunions may prevent people from wearing fashionable shoes like high heels or boots due to the tightfitting or narrow nature of those shoes.

Thomas Marquardt, D.P.M., Mayo Clinic Health System podiatrist at Winneshiek Medical Center, is now offering a new treatment for bunions. Called Lapiplasty® 3D Bunion Correction, this procedure stabilizes the bottom toe joint to correct the alignment without surgically cutting the bone.

He says “For years, 2D osteotomy (or bunion surgery) was the best way to correct severe bunions. The procedure consisted of straightening the big toe by removing part of the bone. Most patients responded well to this treatment, but recovery took a long time and symptoms did not always completely go away. The new 3D procedure is less invasive, has a greater success rate and has a much shorter recovery time.”

The new technology uses a titanium plate to secure the joint in three locations to correct the misalignment. The titanium plate remains on the joint to prevent it from drifting back out of alignment. Most patients are able to put weight on their foot within days after surgery, and once recovered, can wear their desired shoes without limitations.

Dr. Marquardt says, “Following a full recovery using the 3D bunion technology, most patients can return to their normal practices, including activities and shoe choice.”

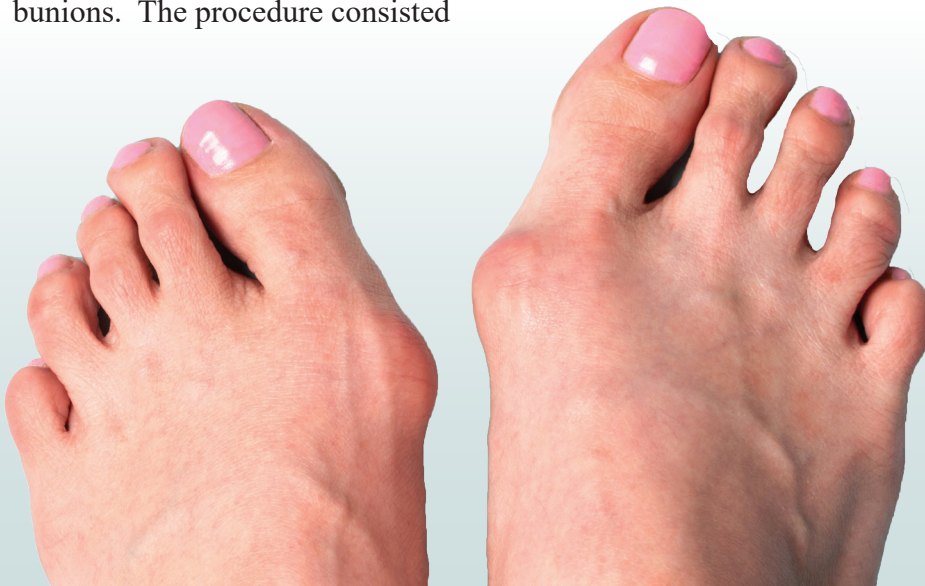

If you have questions about bunions, or are interested in learning more about Lapiplasty® 3D Bunion Correction at Winneshiek Medical Center, call Dr. Marquardt for an appointment at 563-382-2911.

Meet Emily Young Johnson, CNM

Emily Young Johnson, certified nurse midwife at Winneshiek Medical Center, has been providing pregnancy and labor/delivery care and gynecologic health services to women in the region since 2007.

Why did you choose midwifery care?

I became interested in birth and providing care to women when I read the book, A Wise Birth, by Penny Armstrong and Sheryl Feldman. I wanted to assist women through the normal physiological process of pregnancy and birth; helping them have the birth experience they desire, while keeping them safe and feeling supported. Becoming parents is such a life changing experience, and it can have so many unexpected twists and turns. Walking through the journey with a trusted provider can help women navigate all the changes.

What do you enjoy most about your practice?

I really enjoy getting to know the women and their families, finding out what is important to them, and how to make their experience as positive as possible. Every woman and every birth is different, and I love the challenge and beauty that can be found in each situation.

What do you enjoy most about working at WMC?

Besides getting to help take care of women and their families, I enjoy the staff at WMC. We are a small hospital, and we have a dedicated group of physicians, providers, nurses and staff who truly care about each other and our patients. We always have challenges, but the team work that is created is like none other that I have ever witnessed or been a part of.

What are some hobbies/interests you enjoy outside of your work?

In my free time, I enjoy the activities that our small farm brings: growing Christmas trees, planting vegetable and flower gardens, and making maple syrup and apple cider. I also am an avid runner and quilter, which are interests that always help with mental health! Finally, I am a music lover and enjoy opportunities to make music with the community and our three daughters when I get the chance.

Welcome baby Calvin

Meghan and Ryan Harrod from Cresco, IA welcomed their first born, Treyton, in 2019 at Winneshiek Medical Center with Andy Goodner, M.D., Mayo Clinic Health System family medicine and obstetrics physician. When they found out they were expecting again they knew they wanted to see Dr. Goodner. Meghan shares, “Dr. Goodner and the OB team were so accommodating when we delivered Treyton. They made sure I was as comfortable as possible, and provided great care.”

On the evening of December 14, 2022, the Harrod’s left home for an induction with their second child. When they had arrived at Winneshiek Medical Center it was evident the organization was preparing for the predicted wind storm about to impact the area the following morning. Meghan says, “Connie (Klimesh), obstetrics nurse at WMC, brought in flashlights to the labor room in case things got as bad as they had expected.” As Meghan’s labor progressed, so did the weather.

At Winneshiek Medical Center, our providers deliver over 90 percent of their own prenatal patients, a reassuring statistic you may not find in larger facilities.

The OB team moved Meghan and Ryan to a tornado safe room for safety precautions. Once Meghan was settled, the anesthetist came to provide her with an epidural. “I knew I wanted an epidural, but I was nervous. When I received my first epidural during my previous delivery, my blood pressure had dropped slightly,” says Meghan. “However, I explained the situation to the provider and was reassured with their familiarity of those types of situations. Prior to getting my epidural this time around, I was happy to have my nerves put at ease.”

While things were progressing with Meghan’s labor the nurses were doing their best to keep her distracted by offering baby name ideas. “One nurse even mentioned to me the name Gus because it was going to be “gusty” outside. It was fun to laugh and joke around with them,” says Meghan. “To be honest, Ryan and I wouldn’t have known the weather was bad if it wasn’t for the overhead announcements happening because everyone’s focus was on us and providing a safe delivery for Kal.”

Meghan and Ryan welcomed their second son, Calvin into their family. Meghan shares, “Soon after delivery, Calvin was placed on my chest, and just like that the power went out for about two minutes before the generators turned on.” Following the delivery, the Harrod family remained in the labor room for some time for safety reasons due to the power outage. “It’s our goal to provide a secure, safe and comfortable environment for mothers and babies before, during, and after delivery,” shares Brianne Leikvold, RN, BSN, nursing director for obstetrics at Winneshiek Medical Center.

Once it was safe Meghan, Ryan, and baby Kal were transferred to their postpartum room, and provided a snack from the nutrition services team. “The kitchen didn’t have power because of the storm, but they made sure to take care of us to the best of their ability,” comments Meghan. “Once the power was restored throughout the facility the meals were delicious.”

“Dr. Goodner checked on Kal and me routinely to make sure the wind storm didn’t cause added anxiety or nervousness to either of us. It’s nice to have access to a rural hospital that cares so deeply for their patients,” says Meghan.

shares Dr. Goodner.

“Welcoming a newborn into the world brings on a whole new level of emotions, so connecting with my patients frequently to assess their needs has always been a top priority for me.”

At Winneshiek Medical Center, birthing is special and personal. Our team of physicians, plus one midwife, work alongside our specialized obstetric nurses to provide an unparalleled experience for families. Our providers deliver over 90 percent of their own prenatal patients, a reassuring statistic you may not find in larger facilities. ## WMC purchases new technology to support Ear, Nose, Throat specialty

Sinusitis is inflammation of the sinus lining that is caused by a bacterial infection and commonly called a sinus infection. Your doctor may recommend saline nasal sprays, antibiotics, nasal steroid sprays, decongestants and over-the-counter pain relievers to help relieve the condition.

However, if you experience symptoms for longer than 12 weeks you could have chronic sinusitis.

Balloon Sinuplasty is a pioneering minimally-invasive breakthrough procedure that relieves the pain and pressure associated with chronic sinusitis or chronic sinus blockage. Similar to how angioplasty uses balloons to open blocked arteries, Balloon Sinuplasty, a system of FDA-cleared, catheter-based instruments, opens blocked sinuses.

The procedure is less invasive than traditional sinus surgery. It allows most patients to return to normal activities quickly.

New 3D Navigation Technology to enhance Balloon Sinuplasty at WMC

Winneshiek Medical Center recently purchased special navigation technology (TruDi® Navigation Technology) to further enhance endoscopic sinus surgery and the Balloon Sinuplasty procedure performed at WMC.

Mayo Clinic Health System Ear, Nose and Throat (ENT) Surgeon William Remington, M.D., performs endoscopic sinus surgery and Balloon Sinuplasty procedures at Winneshiek Medical Center. He says,

“When using the new navigation technology during the sinus surgery procedure, I can track and display the real-time location of instruments relative to the patient’s (pre-acquired) CT images. Through precise identification of the instrument’s tip location and orientation, this can improve my understanding of the location and orientation of the guidewire or instrument in the complex anatomy of the patient’s sinuses.”

Dr. Remington adds, “The more accurate I can be performing sinus surgery, the better the results are for the patient, both for recovery and for the long-term effectiveness in relieving sinusitis.”

To make an appointment with Dr. Remington, call Winneshiek Medical Center at 563-382-2911. To learn more about Balloon Sinuplasty, visit www.winmedical.org/balloon-sinuplasty.
